contested divorce.

London, Feb. 10.—The scandal in the Castellane household excites almost as much interest in London as in Paris, and extraordinary versions of this culminating quarrel are circulating in smart society here.

One story is that the Countess established in the Castellane mansion an unobtrusive, well bred American, ostensibly as a tutor for her sons, but really to closely watch Count Boni and to learn on what foundations rested the reports of his martial forgetfulness which had reached even his wife's ears.

It is told in the boudoirs and clubs here that this "tutor" brought off the coup by gaining entrance to a magnificent bachelor establishment maintained by Count Boni and some of his friends. Here the extreme height of gayety reigned; and here, report has it, were found letters from several French women of highest position.

Prey on Women.
One of the most extraordinary features of this co-operative bachelor establishment was that some particularly wealthy women helped defray its immense expenses. A letter from one such woman was found. It is said, covering a check for $30,000 ($400,000 francs).

Immediately after the discovery Countess Boni left her palace and installed herself and her children at the Hotel Bristol. From there she wrote her husband, ordering him to leave her home, so that she might be at liberty to return there, and offering him a large sum to consent to an un-

Cloud of Football Suspension at Uni-

[Special To The Gazette.]

Madison, Wis., Feb. 10.—Basketball, which hitherto has been the disgraced feature of the athletic department of the University of Wisconsin, is thriving here; but all other departments are disrupted and in danger of utter abandonment by reason of the grave clouds for the future of football. Coach A. C. Kraenzlein will attempt to resume training of the track team in about a week. Captain Platt Brush is coaching a few battery candidates for the baseball team and Coach O'Dea is preparing to continue the winter gymnastics and machine work for the crew material, but until the fate of football is finally solved by the western conference and the faculty here, no contracts for additional coaches or for dual meets or baseball games will be made, and no more supplies will be purchased. The reason is that the profits on football have always been used to maintain all other departments of athletics, and if the gridiron game is to be abolished or suspended, there will not be funds for the support of the other sports. There are no funds at present, but this situation has usually prevailed at this time of the year; however, the assurance of profitable football games the next fall has always been the sustaining element of the credit of the university athletic association. Basketball, fostered by Physical Director J. C. Elsom and Assistant E. D. Angell, is gaining in popularity and seems to be able to pay its own expenses. Track Coach Kraenzlein has a year's contract and can not well let go now, having already drawn the major portion of his salary as trainer of the football squad last fall. Crew Coach O'Dea gets $1,000 a year from the regents and will take chances on getting the other $1,000 that his contract calls for out of the athletic association. His department nets a dead loss of about $5,000 a year. The coach-elect of the baseball team, Elmer "Bemis" Pierce of the St. Paul American Association club, has not been allowed by Graduate Manager Downer to sign his contract, because of prospective scarcity of funds and credit, and refuses to begin work on the team until assured of his remuneration of $600 a year. The mid-year examinations have interfered with training somewhat in addition to the financial situation, and the near approach of the annual doubleswell junior promenade is another feature that overshadows athletics, but the vital question of the situation is: "What will be done to football?"

NEW CLASS OF VESSEL IS LAUNCHED IN OCEAN TODAY

England Begins Manufacturing New Type Of Naval Construction In Dreadnaught.

[By Associated Press.]

Portsmouth, England, Feb. 10.—The battleship Dreadnaught, which, when finished, will have cost seven and a half million dollars, was successfully launched here today by King Edward. The ceremony was the most simple possible, the King having vetoed all decorations and pageantry on account of the death of his father-in-law, King Christian.

The launch of the Dreadnaught, the largest and most powerful battleship of the world's navies, marks the first stage in what the British admiralty claim as the greatest achievement in naval construction. On October 2, 1905, only a few days over four months ago, work was commenced at Portsmouth on the vessel, the first of what is to be known as the Dreadnaught class. The promise was made that she would be launched within six months. The admiralty has more than made good their boast and Britishers have another cause for pride in their navy. Another twelve months, all going well, the Dreadnaught will be commissioned and join saving in the cost, but the chief reason is that the ship is to some extent an experiment and it is desired to give her a good trial before commencing construction on any more of her class. Great Britain is to be remembered was the only power having attaches or observers on Japanese ships during the Russo-Japanese war, while expert British constructors were given every opportunity of learning wherein the ships of Japan proved weak or strong as the case might be. These men were busy from start to finish of the war and immediately after the battle of the Sea of Japan came home with their data, which was submitted with suggestions, to a special committee on which sat not only the most experienced naval experts but the director of naval construction, Lord Kelvin, and a number of the Atlantic Fleet, thus beating all previous records in battleship building by six months. There are two reasons why work is being rushed on the Dreadnaught. One is the great

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 10.—Gordon Bigelow, a son of Frank G. Bigelow, the defaulting president of the First National bank, is alleged in an indictment returned against former Assistant Cashier Henry G. Goll, to have received one hundred and twenty-two thousand dollars of the funds alleged to have been embezzled by Frank G. Bigelow and Cashier Goll. The various counts allege that the senior Bigelow and Goll fraudulently transferred money at different times in varying amounts to Gordon Bigelow for personal use.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Berlin, Feb. 10.—Negotiations at Algieras have reached a decisive turn in the dissolution of the Moroccan conference without an agreement on the principal subject in discussion, which appears to be the probable result. The positions of France and Germany have now been clearly disclosed. Each country is supported by several other powers who held tenaciously to their own principle settlement.

PROFESSOR SENT TO JAPAN TO SPEND $10,000 FOR BOOKS

[Special To The Gazette.]
Seattle, Wash., Feb. 10.—Dr. Asakawa, a lecturer at Dartmouth college, sails today for Japan to carry out a joint commission from the Library of Congress and Yale University. Each of these institutions has set aside $10,000 to be expended by Dr. Asakawa in the purchase of a large and systematic collection of books from public and private sources. Before returning to America he will visit China, Korea and Siam for the purpose of pursuing courses of study and observation.

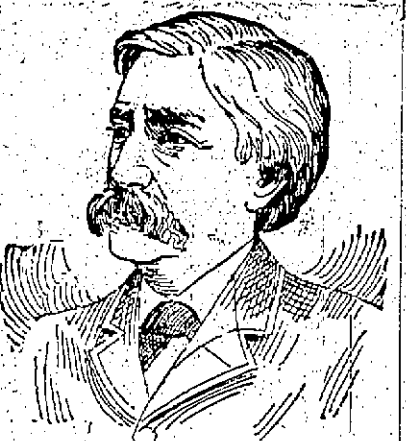

ANNIVERSARY OF LINCOLN'S BIRTH WILL BE OBSERVED IN MANY CHURCHES TOMORROW

[Special To The Gazette.]
New York, Feb. 10.—Advices received at the headquarters of the American Missionary association in this city indicate that there will be a general response among the churches tomorrow to the association's appeal to hold special services in recognition of the 77th birthday of Abraham Lincoln. The appeal was issued especially to Congregational churches, but the Methodists and other denominations will also unite in observing the anniversary.

est judicial position in the land intends to resign. For fully a decade this report has been periodically circulated and Secretary Taft and others of prominence have often been mentioned as Mr. Fuller's successor on the supreme bench. So far as is known however, the Chief Justice has no more definite intention of resigning now than he did when the report was first published. He bears his age lightly and apparently enjoys the honors of his official position and the social life of the capital. Mr. Fuller spends much time in work and study, yet finds time to move among his fellow men in a social way. He is not a clubman, in the accepted sense of that word, but he is occasionally seen both at the Metropolitan Club and at the Chevy Chase Club.

INSURANCE REPORT TO BE MADE MONDAY

Armstrong Committee's Findings and Recommendations Have Not Been Allowed to Leak.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, Feb. 10.—If nothing interferes with the plans of the Armstrong Investigating committee, the report of its insurance investigations will be presented to the legislature Monday. Every precaution is being taken by the committee to prevent a leak, and though the report consists of 75,000 words, it will exist only in typewritten form until after it has been made public. The committee preferred not to take the chance of sending it to the state printer. Although the committee is said to have been of one mind on the general reforms that ought to be instituted, several members, it is said, had decided opinions of their own as to the remedies that ought to be applied. Many of these opinions differed, and a good many revisions of the original text were necessary before the report was finally completed.

A Military Wedding.
Annapolis, Md., Feb. 10.—A brilliant military wedding here today was that of Miss Marie Baker, daughter of Commander Asher C. Baker, U. S. N., and Captain Charles R. Lloyd, U. S. A. The ceremony was performed in the naval academy chapel in the presence of a brilliant assemblage of army and navy officers and their families.

Internal Dissension Is Settled in the Committee Room Without Any Debate.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—With all sorts of rumors the senate committee on interstate commerce today resumed its consideration of the railroad rate bill. The rupture in the committee yesterday, causing Senator Clapp to withdraw and Senators Folger and Aldrich to indulge in a heated controversy over the character of the amendment offered, was smoothed over, temporarily at least. Senator Clapp, however, was not present today.

Women Spend Afternoon in Jaunts
About Baltimore.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Baltimore, Md., Feb. 10.—The women in attendance on the convention of the national woman suffrage association spent this forenoon in jaunts to places of interest in and about Baltimore. This afternoon the convention turned its attention to the needs of home protection, discussing among other things the work of women on health and school boards and in the police department. This evening has been set aside for the discussion of "Women in History." The speakers to be heard include Miss Marie Brem, president of the Illinois W. C. T. U.; Mrs. Belle de Rivers, president of the New York City Woman Suffrage League; Miss Jane Campbell of Philadelphia; and Mrs. Jean Nelson Penfield of New York. Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth of the Volunteers of America has accepted an invitation to deliver an address at special services to be held tomorrow.

RESEMBLES THE BOXER OUTBREAK

Conditions Are Similar To The Famous Trouble Of Several Years Ago--Troops Are Held In Readiness.

[Special To The Gazette.]

Washington, Feb. 10.—Senator Hale's declaration that he would interrogate Secretary Taft in committee as to why he had sent additional troops to the Philippines in preparation for an expected outbreak in China against foreigners led Friday to a warm defense of his action on the part of the State Department. It was declared that conditions in China, according to reports received from all sources, private as well as diplomatic and consular, indicated a state of feeling which was analogous to that in 1900 preceding the Boxer outbreak.

Moreover, had there not been in that year a sufficient force of officers and men in the Philippines which could be rushed to China, the members of the legations in Peking would have been murdered in the most cruel manner. Only the American contingent forced the expedition overseas. It was said, and only American insistence brought the allied troops there in time to prevent the massacre.

Bitter Against Americans.
In the Navy Department officers returning from the Asiatic station without exception have brought reports of anti-foreign feeling and statements that the Americans were the foreigners against whom this feeling was directed most bitterly. Working with the desires of the State Department and in harmony with the preparations of the War Department, the cruisers Galveston and Chattanooga have been ordered to leave Rear Admiral Sigbee's squadron at the close of his Mediterranean cruise and to proceed to Chinese waters by way of the Suez Canal. They also will be available to go to the rescue of any threatened Americans in the empire, while from the Philippines can be sent in a force of several thousand soldiers, infantry and cavalry. Transportation for them is not yet arranged, but it is expected that it will be within a very short time.

Precautionary Measures.
Hostile as these movements may appear and as they are regarded by Senator Hale, the administration is careful to explain that they are to be regarded only as precautionary and the further statement was made that this country can afford to take great risks of criticism, provided that by so doing it contributes to the saving of the lives of American citizens.

When Secretary Taft was before the Senate committee on appropriations he requested an appropriation of $100,000 for additional barracks and quarters for the army at or near Manila, because of the situation in China. The committee did not think it expedient to make the appropriation at this time, but the report of the hearings will be referred to the committee on Philippines as it is thought by some senators that the matter is of such importance that the committee on the Philippines should take it up.

PAUL DUNBAR, NEGRO POET, WRITER, DEAD

Most Noted Author of His Race Expires at Dayton, Ohio, After Long Struggle with Consumption.

Dayton, Ohio, Feb. 10.—Paul Laurence Dunbar, famed as the most talented negro writer of poetry and author of many creditable works in prose, died of consumption at his home in this city Friday afternoon, after an illness of three years.

Although he had known during the past year that death was near at hand, he did not cease his literary labors, and when able he was constantly busy with his pen. His last poem was written for his Christmas book. It was entitled, "Howdy, Honey, Howdy." The son of a father and a mother who were slaves, Paul Laurence Dunbar's rise in life from the lowly position of newsboy and elevator conductor to that of a librarian in the service of the government at Washington was remarkable in itself; but his subsequent transition to a successful writer of songs, plays, short stories, poetry and books can be attributed to nothing less than a near approach to genius.

Dunbar was born in Dayton, Ohio, June 27, 1872, and obtained a limited education at Steele high school and Oberlin college.

DR. RUSSELL KILLS DISEASED CATTLE

Five Animals Slain Before Large Crowd of Farmers at Madison Yesterday.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 10.—Two hundred farmers, attending the farmers and housekeepers' course at the university, watched Dr. H. L. Russell, head of the bacteriological department of the university, slaughter and dissect five cows infected with tuberculosis at the pavilion of the university farm yesterday afternoon. The cows were animals that had been condemned by the state. The animals were all healthy looking, and only after the test had been made by Dr. Russell was one able to tell that they were diseased. During the course of the demonstration, Dr. Russell kept up a lecture on the need of a law in the state requiring every owner of cattle to have his herd tested before he be allowed to sell milk in the state. Dr. Russell went on to say that the disease of tuberculosis was not inherited by the animals infected, but was contracted from some outside force.

Of the 200 farmers present, only twelve who were cattle owners, had had their herds tested by the state. Dr. Russell cited instances in Dane county where milk from diseased cows was being sold, and he made the statement that out of the fifteen herds tested by the state so far 25 per cent of the animals have been infected. The lecture yesterday afternoon was the first of a course that he will give during the farmers' stay in Madison. Another practical demonstration will be given next Friday afternoon.

Gov. James O. Davidson and Secretary of State Walter L. Houser attended the demonstration.

CHINESE COMMISSIONERS WILL ARRIVE IN ELITE BOSTON TOWN TOMORROW

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Boston, Mass., Feb. 10.—The Chinese High Commission which is touring this country to study its social, political and industrial institutions, will arrive in Boston tomorrow morning and the state and city officials have completed elaborate arrangements for the entertainment of the distinguished visitors. During their stay of three days, the feature of the entertainment program will be a banquet to be given by Governor Guild at the Algonquin club Monday evening. The envoys will inspect some of the large cotton mills in this vicinity, in which industry they are especially interested, and will also visit other large industrial plants.

ARCHITECTURE OF RENAISSANCE

SUBJECT OF LECTURE BY PROF. T. L. WRIGHT

WAS ORDER OF MEMORIES

In Which Was Merged All That Men Had Done in Building During Preceding Ages.

Architecture—a subject which lies so close to everyday life that not one person in five hundred knows or can discuss intelligently its most elemental characteristics and principles, is the subject of a series of helpful and interesting lectures which Prof. Theodore Wright is delivering before the Janesville Art League this season. In opening his address on "The Meaning of the Renaissance in Architecture," at the high school building yesterday afternoon Prof. Wright asked his hearers to consider the question: "What is it in a school building or church or other public or private edifice which leads the observer to regard it as either beautiful or ugly? The query could be answered by reducing the method and style of building to the combinations of composition—mass, line, shadow, tone, texture, and color.

Elements of Architecture. Mass or gravitation in a structure, a subject exhaustively treated in Ruskin's "Lamp of Power," is the effect of solid weight, compactness, the everlasting appearance—or vice versa, which a building like the Marshall Field block in Chicago produces. Line or outline is the effect secured by surfaces and edges (clinging the Flatiron building in New York) and both mass and line go to make up "Power." Tone is the contrast in the play of light and shadow, such as an observer might realize when the sun smites the surface of the Janesville high school building and the large archway remains in the dark. It is secured by windows and doorways and "T's" thrown out from cottages and homes. Then there is texture—the sheen of the mosaic or the roughness of the unpressed brick by which the observer comes to feel that he knows what the building is made of and how the artist would use a light play of tools or quite the opposite. Brick there is color inherent in the brick or stone and secured by paint for the wood or metal.

As Exemplified in Styles. While all these elements enter into all architecture, certain of them may be regarded as pre-eminent in certain styles. In the orient—Egypt—the greatest perfection of mass was obtained in the ponderous gravitation of the pyramids; the bigness of the temples. In tone—the perfect play of light and shadow the Greeks did best. The Parthenon at Athens was a marble trap, cage, or net, built up to catch the sunshine. The Greeks then made their architecture one of tone, particularly in the Romanesque buildings of northern Italy—Germany, Normandy, and England—the side walls of such cathedrals as that at Mayence on which the eyes love to linger—the greatest perfection of texture was secured. Of all the styles the Gothic exemplifies the play of lines with their uplift and inspiration. It is the paradox of the Gothic that walls, thrown into buttresses and flying buttresses, lose their identity as walls, thrown into buttresses and fly, vanishes in the great ribs which form its outline. The architecture of color—found in the orient and northern Italy—was a form which the Byzantine people loved so well. The art of the latter was imitated in the cathedral of St. Mark at Venice with its marvelous interior and exterior mosaics. It is seen in the barred, zebra-like glass and white marble walls of Pisa.

Architecture of Memories. The speaker then traced the rise of the classic spirit of humanism.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful It is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purposes.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines, and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion; it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from the continued use of them, but on the contrary great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat. I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets.

the love for general culture rather than religious alone—in the fifteenth century as exemplified in the changes which took place in the building. Instinctively turning to Rome as the schoolmistress, all Europe believing it was going back to classic ideals, learned a new style developed by the Florentine, Brunelleschi and his successors and based not on observation but on the erroneous records of ancient architectural practices laid down in writing by one Vitruvius. In this new style there came to be all manner of departures and combinations of the old styles. Engaged columns which held up nothing, had no utility save that most useless of useless things—superficial decoration—were stuck onto buildings, or carvices were thrown out of place to allow columns to hold them up. Pagan and Christian art mingled freely. Medallions of the Roman emperors, who had persecuted Christians were used in the facade and imaginative decorations of monasteries. In buildings such as St. Peter's at Rome columns which had always theretofore been one story high were made to rise four stories. This was the so-called colossal order and is observable in some of our colonial homes today. These lofty pilasters seemed to give greater majesty. Domes came to be elevated on octagonal drums and lanterns surmounted them. After the best had been attained there followed in the 16th and 17th centuries under the influence of the results who sought to regain power for the church through an appeal to the taste of the people, the sensational style, in which columns were grouped in colossal orders to sustain balustrades and gigantic statues. The Gothic age had been one of national effort when the masses got together and built cathedrals. The Renaissance was fostered by the new aristocrats of Florence and was meant to appeal to men of nice, scholarly tastes. In it we have the memories of all that men had done before in architecture.

Prof. Wright's next lecture will be on "The Decadence of the Architecture of Italy." His talk yesterday was illustrated with beautiful stereopticon views.

CURTAIN RUNG DOWN ON CAREER OF IMMORTAL J. N.

Public Life Of Most Widely Known Character In Country Closed By Poor House Door.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Bucyrus, O., Feb. 10.—When the doors of the Crawford county poor house closed the immortal J. N. "Free" of the immortal J. N. "Free" the curtain was rung down on one of the most unique and interesting characters this country ever has known.

There are few people in the country, at least in the middle west, who have not seen or heard of this man. Eighty years ago Jacob Newman Free was born in Tiffin, Ohio, the eldest son of a Presbyterian minister. Half a century ago he became known as the "Immortal J. N." and ever since he has been living as the birds live, but in a much greater condition of luxury. When he was admitted to the county infirmary the other day he proudly displayed to the officials of the institution an old pocketbook containing more than 100 slips of paper reading, "Good for J. N." being life passes signed by officials of the leading railroads of the country. By means of these passes "J. N." traveled wherever he pleased. He visited every state and territory and in every city of more than 2,000 inhabitants he had friends. He claims, and his claim is generally believed, that he knows more people personally than any other living man. Everywhere he went he stayed at the best hotels and for half a century no landlord was found bold enough to even present him with a bill.

In his youth "J. N." was an infant phenomenon. At 4 years of age he read almost all of the Bible, and during his teens he acquired a reading and speaking knowledge of no less than thirteen languages. During the gold craze of 49 he went west and started a stage line. Within two years he accumulated a fortune of $50,000. A partner robbed him and "J. N." then returned to Ohio and began the study of law.

Within a few years he was prominent at the bar in Cincinnati. One day, so the story goes, he was defending a murderer, in whose innocence he strongly believed. As a result of his eloquence the man was acquitted. The same day his client confessed that he was guilty. "J. N." rushed back to the court room and started to explain, but the strain and excitement had been too much for him. He was stricken with apoplexy. Within a short time he recovered his physical health, but never his mental poise.

He became the "Immortal J. N." and started on the wandering life which he has followed for fifty years. He was the apostle of "Pressure," a mysterious force which but for him would crush out of existence all the inhabitants of the United States. He was well acquainted with President Lincoln, and numbered many distinguished men among his friends. During the war he even started out to find Jefferson Davis and save the union by putting the "pressure" on the leader of the confederacy. He got within the Confederate lines when he was arrested and given thirty minutes to leave the country. "J. N." says he still has twenty-nine and a half minutes of the time coming to him.

ADAMS SCHOOL WILL OBSERVE HOLIDAYS

Ten Grades of Institution Will Join in Celebrating Five Days This Year.

Teachers in the Adams graded school in the second ward have made novel plans for the observance of five holidays during the remaining portion of the school year. There are ten grades in the institution and these will join on each occasion in one celebration, eight grades entertaining two others each time. This on five days all grades will be guests of honor. The first day to be observed is Lincoln's birthday, which is Monday, and the following program has been arranged to be rendered in the eighth grade room of this school at half past two o'clock in the afternoon:

Music—"Moonlight and Roses." Edith Pratt, violin; Gertrude McGinnis, piano; 7th grade.

Recitation—"Crowning Lincoln," Roy Howard; 4th grade.

Town Talk

The Mite society was in session. The purpose of the meeting was to sew for Mrs. Robinson who had been ill. The object was being accomplished, but that was not all. All the community's scandal and gossip that could be imagined from a week's happenings in the community had been released. The Joneses as a family were now being dose of the honor of occupying the attention of the dozen worthy dames. Mr. Jones and Mrs. Jones had been eulogized (?) and placed in their correct "categories." The three daughters were being discussed. The new gown and the recently purchased pattern hat of the oldest had been described. "The second eldest had been informally voted a coquette. The persistency of the youngest, in remaining in the parlor when the oldest was entertaining her prospective fiancé had brought the entire family in disrepute for it showed one of the children had been veryilly bred. Turning the gossip back to the oldest, one of the industrious seamstresses said, "why she is a regular fashion plate." Here Mrs. Robinson's back-elder brother joined the conversation, remarking, "Yes, you might call her that and term the second oldest a little saucy dish and the youngest an individual butter."

GRACE GEORGE PLAY A DRAMATIC EVENT

Large Audience Witnessed Surprisingly Good Production at the Myers Last Night.

Whether or not Margaret Mayo's stage adaptation from Mrs. Humphry Ward's 502-page novel, "The Marriage of William Ash," hailed by some as one of the greatest pieces of English fiction since George Eliot's time, is an adequate adaptation, is a question which will have little weight with the majority of those who witnessed the presentation of the play by Grace George and her company at the Myers theatre last evening. If the minute, psychological analysis of motives to which the great English writer devotes page after page could not be transferred to the stage, it occasioned no regret. The characters were by no means obvious. They were sufficient to comprehend and the plot moved with reasonable speed to its inevitable denouement. As far as the local audience was concerned, interest never flagged and they were certain calls after every act. The reception accorded this presentation was of such a nature that it deserves to be ranked as one of the greatest dramatic offerings here this season.

The delineation of the capricious, emotional little being about whom the events of the story revolved, as presented by Miss Grace George, left a clear cut impression which will not soon be erased. If she sometimes seemed just a trifle theatrical in her methods, the lapses were infrequent. Delineating her kinsfolk, and the social forms they stood for, branding their faces and ridiculing pretensions to their faces, first refusing with quiet gratitude Ash's offer of marriage, then accepting it when she found that it was not prompted by mere chivalrous generosity, but by a genuine forgiveness for the escape of the Thames with the poet Geoffrey Cliffe, planning with innocent merriment the foolish book which was to wreck the political career of her husband, saying and doing things one moment which she must bitterly repent the next, "Lady Kitty" was always the strange, elusive, elfin-like, but altogether lovable creature—even in her worst tantrums—which the author must have intended her to be. And the quiet power of William Ash as played by H. Reeves Smith—strong, gentle, suffering almost too patiently to stand up to the time his political ambitions and the machinations of designing relatives gained the ascendancy—was also a delight to the observer. Even then it appears that he had not intended to definitely cast off the woman he had loved; though it was so understood by her, and her flight into the mountains with the poet was her last and greatest mistake—the intolerable sin against him which he could not forgive. Ben Webster, as Geoffrey Cliffe the poet (supposed to have had in Lord Byron a prototype in real life) did not succeed as well in persuading the audience as the woman, though he was an improvement on the poet in "The Pit" which appeared here recently.

Of the other characters—Lady Transmore as portrayed by Miss May Whithy, the Lady Gresville of Mrs. Reginald Carrington, the Lord Plam of W. J. Constantine, the Mary of Ruth Holt, the Lord Grosvenor of Fred Sidney and Eddie Helston of Tottier, and Nelson were all well done. The Little Dean of Donald MacLaren was not so satisfactory, but it was a minor and very unimportant part.

Those who expected to see the revelations of social degradation in London which Roy Jenkins Lloyd Jones found in the book were pleasantly disappointed. The play was sumptuously staged, the Ash garden Veretian, and Alpan scenes being particularly beautiful. The spectator inquired anxiously if the water falls in the latter scene was an avalanche, when the curtain first went up on the last scene.

INTERESTING DATA CONCERNING BOOKS AND CIRCULATION

Records of Public Library for January of 1905 and 1906 Compared—Books Distributed Through Schools.

Though the public library has been exceedingly popular since it was reopened on January 11 and there was a wild rush for books for two weeks following this date the record for January of 1905 was not broken by the record of the eighteen days of this January, that books were at the disposal of the public. In the main library there were 747 more books drawn in January, 1906, than in 1905 and in the children's room there were 252 more. However, this latter loss in circulation is compensated for. Though there is no correct data to prove the belief it is thought that this number of volumes were drawn during that period from branch libraries that were established in 18 grades of the public schools. The comparative records for the eighteen days of January, 1906, and the complete month of January, 1905, are appended:

More Books for Schools. Last fall 210 volumes from the children's room were distributed to various city schools in lots of twelve, one lot going to every fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh grade in the city except those of the Jefferson school, the scholars in this district living close to the library. The books thus given out proved very popular and the circulation for the entire number during the time they were in the schools, they having never been withdrawn, was 1050. In some cases the volumes were withheld from circulation during the period the library was closed and in others an exact record was not kept so that with more favorable circumstances the showing would even have been better. Another series of sets, being arranged and will soon be placed in the schools. This time lots will be prepared for the eighth grades also.

TERRIBLE CHARGE HANGS OVER HEAD OF OREGONIAN

Is Accused of Slaying Wife And Daughter, Burning Heads In Stove And Firing House.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

McMinnville, Ore., Feb. 10.—In the Yamhill county jail here, awaiting trial at the approaching term of court, is a man who is charged with what the authorities regard as one of the most appalling crimes ever recorded in Oregon. His name is Abram Hembre and he is accused of having murdered his wife and his sixteen-year-old daughter, of having chopped their bodies up, burned the heads in the kitchen stove, carried wood and stacked it around the remains, and then set fire to his home to hide the evidence of his crime.

The accused man belongs to one of the pioneer families of this section. His father crossed the plains in 1841 and settled in this county. In 1896 he met death in battle while leading a company of Oregon volunteers against the Indians. Twenty years ago young Abram Hembre married a handsome girl, Columbia Lawrence, and settled in the adjoining county of Tillamook. Hembre was rather a thriftless fellow, given to dissipation, though never considered a real "bad man." He was in the habit of frequenting a cross-roads saloon with one or two roistering companions, and when in his cups was wont to flourish his revolver and descend upon his prowess and bloodthirstiness. But his bravado seldom got beyond the talking stage.

His wife, patient and industrious, stayed at home and reared her family, which consisted of a son, aged 18, a daughter, Ora, aged 16, and two younger boys, aged 12 and 10. The oldest boy finally left home, leaving the daughter and two younger boys with their mother.

The murder of mother and daughter is supposed to have taken place on December 28 last. A few days before that date the two boys left home to visit a relative. On the morning of December 29, Hembre arrived at the house of a neighbor, clad only in his undergarments, wet and chilled to the bone. He asked if his wife or daughter were there and declared that his house was burned and they were gone.

He said that the family had awakened to find their house in flames and all had carried out what they could; that his daughter wanted to go back for a trunk which contained her little belongings, that he had ordered the women not to enter the house; that he had gone around to a store-room in the rear to attempt to save some provisions and that when he returned the women were gone; that he had called and received no answer; had searched the barn and then concluded that they might have sought a neighbors, and he too had left the burning house.

Hembre's tale, when repeated to the sheriff and coroner, was always the same. It was believed at first, but later aroused suspicion. The ruins were thoroughly searched, in a healing stove were found bones which physicians pronounced to be parts of skulls, indicating that they had been crushed or broken up before being burned. It was said that teeth were found lying among the bones of the feet, and that four cords of wood had been hauled to the house a few days before the tragedy.

Hembre's clouded career was recalled, and he was finally placed under arrest. When all the facts became known the wrath of the neighbors was aroused to fury and soon there was talk of lynching. Hembre was consequently brought to McMinnville by the authorities for safe keeping. At the next hearing of court he will be tried for murder in the first degree.

News for the Railroad Men.

St. Paul Road. By the quick and merry action of Policeman John Dalton a traveling salesman, bound for towns on the Mineral Point division, was just saved from death last evening. He was coming up high street toward the depot and failed to heed the warnings of both the officer and of St. J. Dedrick, who called to him from the rear. The man stepped onto the North Western track and Dalton, at the risk of his own life, seized him on just in time to save him from being hurled to eternity by an incoming North Western passenger.

General Notes

Press dispatches from Boston say that the Boston & Maine has increased the pay of 20,000 employees by percentages varying from 10 per cent to 15 per cent, and that the total increased annual expenditure will be $1,325,000.

The Rathbun bill, providing for a maximum passenger fare of two cents a mile, has passed the senate of the Ohio legislature and is now before the house. Similar measures have been introduced in previous sessions, but never came to a vote.

The supreme court of Alabama in Louisville and Nashville Railroad Co. vs. Quinn (30 Southern Rep. 616) decided that a father and husband may recover for his services as nurse to his wife and children rendered sick by exposure after election from a train before reaching the station called for by their ticket.

According to a Chicago reporter, one railroad president in that city says that he has tried vainly to find 3,000 men for work on new construction in the northwest. He says that the railroads are offering from $1.75 to $2.50 a day without attracting workmen. Not for twenty-five years has he known labor to be so scarce.

The supreme court of Tennessee (Gossett vs. Southern Railroad Co., 39 southwestern Rep. 737) holds that an adjoining property owner is entitled to recover, against a railroad company, damages sustained by the noise and discomfort resulting from blasting operations in the construction of the road near his property, where resulting in physical injury or impairment of health.

FOOTLIGHT FLASHES

"The Pink Hussars," Tuesday, Feb. 13, J. Clarence Harvey, the ablest of comedians, is the starred feature of this production—an honor which he shares, however, with the English Pony Ballet. The ballet has a goodly amount to do in the course of the performance—more than has been allotted to it on the occasion of any previous visit to the west. They are most attractive, are these eight young English dancers. able grace and with a dash that is infectious; the result is pleasure to all who watch. The audience at the Chicago Opera House where the play was known as "His Honor the Mayor," received their every effort with acclaim, and their enduring popularity is certain.
Mr. Harvey assumes the role of the diminutive Mayor of Kankakee, who, to avoid matrimonial complications with a certain May Flood, runs away to Europe. He lands in Paris, where he encounters an old time sweetheart of his, who now is employed in a milliner's establishment. The success achieved this season by the Haverly Mastodon Minstrels has been unparalleled in its history and when this big aggregation comes to the Myers Grand, Saturday, February 10, Matinee and Evening, mirth and music will surely hold sway. The show is more like the popular old time minstrel performance than has been offered in minstrelsy in many years. The entire organization is in black face, and the laughing features of the show have been developed over everything else. The bright, particular star is Billy Beard, who is without a doubt the funniest minstrel and man ever known to the minstrel stage. His work this season is said to be by far the best in his career of funmaking, and there is always an epidemic of hilarity whenever he makes his appearance. He is ably assisted by a dozen or more of the best of burnt cork comedians, including Billy Pearl, Perrin Somers, Al. Plean, Herman Marion and Bert Stoddard.

Miss Grace George who appeared here last evening left today at 11:45 o'clock for Madison where the company plays this evening.

Ernest Lamson, who pleased a large Janesville audience several months ago, as Dave Lacy in the presentation of "The Heir to the Hoorah" is to star next season in a play written by himself, called "A Romance of Bright Angel Trail."

Mr. F. C. Whitely, manager of the "Pink Hussars" which will be at the Myers Opera House next Tuesday evening will be in the city with the attraction. He gives his personal guarantee that this production will be the same in cast and detail as was presented under the title, "His Honor the Mayor" in the Chicago Opera House, Chicago. The piece had a four months run there. "The Pink Hussars" was the original name of the play, but was changed shortly after its first production in Chicago. Upon going on tour the original title was substituted for "His Honor the Mayor." The company will arrive in Janesville from Rockford and will leave Wednesday morning at 6:50 o'clock for Sheboygan.

If you have short breath, fluttering, palpitation, hungry spells, hot flushes; if you cannot lie on left side; if you have fainting or smothering spells, pain around heart, in side and arms, your heart is weak, and perhaps diseased. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure will relieve you. Try a bottle, and see how quickly your condition will improve.

"About a year ago I wrote to the Miles Medical Co. asking advice, as I was suffering with heart trouble, and had been for two years. I had 24 pains in my heart, back and left side, and had not been able to grow a deep breath for two years. My little exertion would cause palpitation, and I could not lie on my left side without suffering. They advised me to try Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and I took about thirteen bottles of the two medicines, and haven't been bothered with my heart since."—MRS. J. ALLEN THOMAS, Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

"To set up one's sail to every wind" is the task of the successful store-advertiser—to conform to times, seasons, weather, fads, crazes—and to know that enterprise is of all times and seasons.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.
A membership on the Stock Exchange of New York sold the other day for $95,000 and at about the same date call money in Wall street commanded from 50 to 100 per cent interest.

It was a time when the Rockefellers and Morgans and a few other multimillionaires had their fannies, and when Tom Lawson enjoyed the skirmish as a spectator.

While the strenuous times prevailed at the great money center and men were sweating blood in a vain effort to raise cash for emergency demands, it is gratifying to know that the country at large was not affected and that the channels of business were not obstructed.

In sharp contrast to the nerve-destraining life of Wall street is the daily routine of humdrum existence in the sunny state of Florida.

To the casual observer this happy-go-lucky country is a paradise, so far removed from the pretty annoyances of the scramble for every day existence that a slight stretch of imagination pictures the "flowery beds of ease" which inspired the poet when he attempted a description of the place called heaven.

Here the inhabitants toil not any more than is necessary. Neither do they spin overtime. The closed shop and eight-hour day are not disturbing elements for they have all the time there is, and devote as little of it as possible to work and worry.

The question of man to support a family on "a thousand a year" was solved long ago in this land of luxurious ease, for the average home is a shack surrounded by a clearing of from one to ten acres where a few orange and grape fruit trees furnish the principle means of existence.

But the people are contented and happy and when the northern visitor, racked with disease, and on the verge of nervous prostration, drops in on them, he is a revelation, for nerves in this country are an unknown quantity, and rust and dry rot are the only diseases which infest the land.

The great problem which absorbs attention and taxes energy is how to make a living, and the most of us are satisfied if the balance sheet at the end of the year finds us square with the world.

The problem would not be so difficult if the procession was not so swift and competition not so keen. The notion is quite prevalent that the climate of the south is enervating and that people who breathe the balmy air and bask in perpetual sunshine, lose ambition, but this is not true.

The environments of any life have much to do with its development. A man can no more move slow in Chicago than he can move fast in Milwaukee, or Philadelphia.

This is true of the south, and when the man from the north, fired with ambition, and overflowing with energy, invades the territory and attempts to revolutionize it, he soon discovers that the procession is not with him, and when the native says to him, "What do you all expect to accomplish in fifteen minutes," the thought grows on him that possibly the logic of his neighbor may be worth investigating.

The people of the south take time to live and they don't believe in waiting to commence until after they have passed the age limit. Their wants are simple and their worries an unknown quantity. They live to a good old age and are always happy because always contented.

If the atmosphere of the south could envelope the north for a generation, the number of men and women who are broken in health, or go out entirely in middle life, would be greatly reduced, and the health resorts of the west and south would soon become bankrupt.

Some one has said about the people of the north that "we spend too much time thinking about our insides." That's the trouble. In the mad rush for the elusive dollar, every law of health is neglected, the delicate machinery of the body, made to run for four score years, becomes clogged, and disease follows as a natural result.

The south and west are overrun with northern invalids. Many of them men and women scarcely passed middle life, yet physical wrecks. The diseases white not contagious are common, and many of them are the result of overwork and worry. Better by far to have spent more time in living easier in the race.

One of the guests at Cleveland is an old gentleman by the name of Dewey from Toledo. He is 81, partially blind but strong and vigorous. Every day he spends on the water alone, for he is a great fisherman. Some one was joking him the other night about being old when he said, "If you'll show me which foot is in the grave I'll get up and shake it, and if you'll furnish music, I'll give you an old fashioned hoe down."

The old gentleman has never spent much time thinking about his insides, but he has spent a good deal of time in living, and is still a well preserved specimen.

He discovered long ago the secret which so many fail to discover, that life is what we get out of it, and the channel which he selected was a health and happiness promoter.

While it is well to encourage ambition, it is also well to remember that there is a limit to endurance, and that health is the only capital after all which furnishes enjoyment. Money is a good thing to possess, but it is not to be compared to health.

There are plenty of people who would give all they possess for the health of former years, and the only consolation which comes to them, is that they might have retained it had they taken time to live.

The procession which follows in the wake of these unfortunate people, is a large procession and slow to learn by observation the lessons which usually come only through bitter experience. Better the little ranch with its humble surroundings, where health contentment and happiness go hand in hand than the home where nothing is lacking but health, for that means more than all the rest. Take time to live, and if you don't know how go south and learn the art.

NEW CLASS VESSEL LAUNCHED TODAY

of the leading private ship builders. The Dreadnought is the outcome of their deliberations, an embodiment of the lessons of the late war in the Far East, a ship apparently invincible, capable at one discharge of her guns of throwing with unparalleled force twice as much metal as any foreign man-of-war now afloat, while her armor will render her immune from attacks by any enemy's guns, and, some claim, even against torpedoes, fired at the usual battle range. The details of the Dreadnought's construction remain a secret so well has the admiralty guarded the plans. Efforts of naval attaches to gather information for their governments have been fruitless. No information is forthcoming, the answer to all enquiries being the candid one that Great Britain intends to maintain secrecy as to what her experts learned as a result of Japan's experiences for one year by rushing to completion, the Dreadnought over all other powers except her ally. Usually when ships are building a board is placed at the head of the ship giving her name, displacement, principal dimensions, horse power and speed. In the case of the Dreadnought not an item in the design is revealed, the board containing the simple sentence, "His Majesty's Ship Dreadnought, commenced October 2, 1905." When ready for sea the ship will displace 18,500 tons but this is the least remarkable thing about her for besides the ideas introduced as a result of the Far Eastern war Britain is placing on her new fighting machine the heaviest armament ever carried by a ship. In the past British vessels have carried four 12-inch guns throwing 850 pound shells; the Dreadnought will have ten of these weapons of a new type with a muzzle energy of 49,568 as compared with the 33,022 of the guns carried in as recent battleships as the Majestic class an increase of power of 50 per cent. In a great sea fight the Dreadnought will be able to discharge every minute ten projectiles weighing 8,500 pounds with sufficient velocity to send them 25 miles or to penetrate about sixteen inches of the hardest armor at a range of about two miles. Unlike all British and foreign battleships built in the past thirty years the new addition to the fleet will carry no weapon smaller than the great twelve inch piece except eighteen three-inch quickfiring for repelling attacks by torpedo craft. She will mount neither 9.2 inch, 7.5 inch nor 6 inch guns, she will be the biggest warship afloat and she will have only the biggest and most powerful guns. The secrets which will be incorporated in the huge hull are still hidden but it is known that they tend to economy as well as efficiency. The Dreadnought will cost ten per cent per ton less than recent battleships British built although she will represent the last word in all details of her construction. In another respect the Dreadnought will be unique she will be the first battleship in the world to be driven by turbines. These engines will supply the power for four propellers, two more than an "ordinary" built British battleship, which should make her the fastest ship of her class afloat. Another advantage of the turbines, as shown by the performance of the Carmania, is that the gunners will have a steadier deck from which to handle the guns.

The guns, armor, machinery, boilers, etc., are ready to be placed in the Dreadnought, so there should be no difficulty in having her ready for sea in twelve months, when she will join the Atlantic fleet, based on Gibraltar, thus being midway between the channel and Mediterranean fleets.

As trouble threatens on the one side or the other the ships of the Atlantic fleet are moved, making them of the greatest use in the time of war, no matter who the enemy might be. Writing of this fleet as it will be when the Dreadnought joins, a naval expert said: "Nothing as devastating as this concentrated destruction has ever been conceived in the brain of man. It is impossible to picture the result of one minute's well-directed fire at an enemy's ship, and when one minute is followed by others, the effect would be too terrible for words, presuming the gunners get the range and fire as at target practice. To this length has the contest for sea power gone, and this is not the end, for the time is not far distant when the British ensign will fly over fleets and squadrons of Dreadnoughts, vessels costing a million and a half sterling or more, each with ten or twelve 12-inch guns, which will engage an antagonist when three or four miles distant, and will pour in a succession of shells weigh 850 pounds carrying wholesale destruction in their wake."

JEWS FAIL TO SECURE RELIEF

Russian Postmaster's Refuse to Cash American Money Orders.

Portland, Ore., Feb. 10.—According to the statements of Dr. N. Mossesohn, a prominent Jew of Portland, a large amount of money sent from the United States to aid Jew sufferers in Russia has never been received. It is stated there has been a general failure of the Russian postoffices to cash postal money orders which have been sent to Jews. The letters accompanying the money orders cite as a reason for their being dishonored that the money is to aid revolutionists. Postmaster-Minto and Supt. Whiteside of the money-order department of the Portland postoffice bear out Dr. Mossesohn's statement as to the fact that the orders are being returned and state that they are receiving complaints continually.

TO THE LOVER of GOOD COFFEE.

This new ROYAL ELECTRIC COFFEE MILL is equipped with knives of razor sharpness and cuts the berry into uniform particles (instead of grinding it.) Thus it is not crushed as by the old method, and the little oil cells remain unbroken. The essential oil (food product) cannot evaporate and is preserved indefinitely.

This is one reason why a pound of coffee cut in this mill will make from fifteen to twenty cups more of full strength coffee than will any coffee ground the old way. But the main thing about this mill is that you can have your coffee cut as fine as the finest sand and it will still be free from that fine dust that is produced by the old method of grinding, therefore you will always have a clear pure coffee.

When you see this mill in a dealer's store you can be convinced that he is trying to have you get the best results obtainable from your coffee.

DON'T BE A KNOCKER

Many a discouraged prospector has thrown down his pick after long search for gold and declared that there was NO GOLD in the whole country.

Yet rich mines were developed there later.

Because he had not found gold was no proof that it wasn't there.

So about PAINLESS DENTISTRY. Because you heretofore have not found your dental work painless is no proof that such work can not be done.

There are a lot of people who knock every NEW thing.

Don't let somebody's unreliable heresy prevent your securing the benefits of having YOUR work done PAINLESSLY by Dr. Richards.

For HE is doing that kind of dentistry and his prices are very moderate.

CITY IS TO BE "PINK-SLIPPED"

FIRE INSURANCE RATES MAY BE RAISED 25 TO 50 PER CENT.

ELECTRICAL CONDITIONS BAD

Western Underwriter Prints Article About Wiring in Janesville That May Have Results.

In this week's issue of The Western Underwriter, the principal fire insurance journal of the middle west, appears an article on electrical conditions in Janesville that may bring about a "pink slipping" of the city, that is, the increasing of all premiums from twenty-five to fifty per cent. The article censures the Janesville Electric company and the city council and has stirred up action from all sides.

Chief to Recommend Changes

Chief of the Fire Department H. C. Klein, in his capacity as inspector of electrical wiring, will use the article as a recommendation in his next quarterly report to the council. One fire insurance company with headquarters in Chicago, sent out a special representative last evening to visit his agent and look after the risks. Other companies have written to their agents, warning them not to take insurance on property where wiring is hazardous.

"Pink Slipping" City. Mr. Lancaster of Milwaukee, an employee of the Union companies, who rates all risks in Wisconsin, was in the city yesterday. He, in discussing the Underwriter's article, stated that the result without doubt would be "pink slipping." The rates on all property in the business district will be raised between twenty-five and fifty per cent.

What the Underwriter Says. The article in question was written after Mr. Spencer, an inspector of the union companies, had spent three weeks in Janesville, and runs as follows:

"ELECTRICAL CONDITIONS BAD

"At Janesville, Wis., 90 Per cent of the Inside Wiring Is Reported Defective—Pole Lines Need Attention."

"At Janesville, Wis., the electric light and power poles have recently been overhauled in the business district, and wires elevated so as to clear two-story buildings. The Wisconsin Telephone Company's pole lines are, on the whole, well constructed, but are not sufficiently elevated in the business district. The Rock County Telephone Company has placed its circuits underground in a portion of the business district, but has failed to install protectors at subscribers' ends on its overhead circuits. It is recommended that all wires in the congested value district, except trolley wires and their supports, be placed underground; and thus minimize the dangers and obstructions of the present overhead conditions.

"The Janesville Contracting Company, which has the same stockholders as the Janesville Electric Company, does practically all of the interior wiring. Electric current is used in about 80 per cent of the buildings in the congested value district. Of this number about 90 per cent of the companies are reported to be defective. About 3 per cent of the latter number are very hazardous, 10 per cent hazardous and 35 per cent poor.

"Under an old and inadequate ordinance the chief of the fire department has authority to inspect electrical wiring. The powers granted in this ordinance are insufficient. The inspector has very little time to devote to this department, and is also handicapped by the power of the owners of the Janesville Electric company, whose influence has nullified most of his efforts for improving electrical conditions. As a result, much cheap and unapproved material has been used, and the workmanship has generally been very careless. The owners and occupants of defective buildings have been notified in writing of the particular defects incident to their electrical wiring system, and have been requested to make the improvements."

STATE NOTES

The lifeless body of Frank Dostal, a Racine trunk-maker, with his throat cut was found Thursday night. He was driven insane by the birth of triplets.

A largely attended joint teachers' institute for Dodge and Jefferson counties and the city of Watertown began at Watertown on Friday, and will close Saturday afternoon.

Another large village is to be added to the suburbs of Racine. It will be known as North Racine. The village will embrace hundreds of acres of land north of the city limits, extending nearly to North point.

Factory Inspector David Evans of Racine is in Kenosha to spend a month investigating the conditions in the manufacturing company, and later in the day, the company was fined $10 for employing boys under the age of 16 years for the operation of elevators.

Free Spoons and Dishes

The manufacturers of the Ex-Cel-O cereal, made in Battle Creek, Mich., are, for a limited time, giving with the purchase of each package at 15c a beautiful cereal dish and silver-plated shell sugar spoon. Every grocer in Janesville has a fresh supply with the dishes and spoons.

FAILED TO HINDER THE SALE OF OLEO

Warnings of Inspectors Disregarded by Local Grocers on Advice of Swift & Co.

Two state inspectors and a U. S. government inspector were in the city this week investigating the oleo-margarine offered for sale by the local grocer. They objected to the faint lemon tint of the article put up by Swift & Co., claiming that some artificial coloring was being used. The manufacturers deny that this is anything other than the natural color and advised the local firms handling the product to continue to supply the demand and assured them that in case of any trouble the company would be responsible. All the dealers save one have followed this advice and the general opinion is that the inspectors are either "honestly mistaken" or are putting up a bluff for some reason or other. Coloring matter is sold in little capsules along with the oleo and this is permitted by law. Many of the farmers who make butter in this region use the packing-house product for their own consumption. One action against the manufacturers is to come up in court at Madison Monday. Most of the oleo used hereabouts is manufactured by Swift & Co.

LATE LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

LOCAL LACONICS

Claim Against Edgerton: Charles E. Pierce and John Fisher, attorneys for Mrs. Frank Collins, who asks $400 damages from the city of Edgerton for injuries sustained in falling upon a sidewalk in front of the H. W. Child warehouse, made an effort to arrange a settlement this week.

Buys a New Auto: George S. Parkin has purchased a new automobile of the 1936 Maxwell pattern. Negotiations are in progress for the purchase of several other machines of various makes by local people.

Face Badly Scalded: George Schaefer, who is employed at the mill of the Janesville Sash and Door company suffered severe scalds about the right side of the face while at work yesterday afternoon. He opened the hot water tank and as the pressure was relieved upon the steam which was confined therein, the water was thrown out upon him.

Slightly Injured: Amiel Langer of the town of Harmony had the misfortune to smash the middle finger of his left hand last Wednesday while loading stone on a wagon. As a result he will be without the use of his hand for some time.

Another Candidate: George Paris this afternoon announced that he would be a candidate for alderman from the third ward on the republican ticket. This makes two candidates in the third ward—Watt and Paris. Mr. Jackson refusing to run for re-election.

Made Bold Grab: As Miss Zella Harris, carrying a hand-bag in one hand and some books in another, passed Yahn Bros' meat-market last evening a youthful sneak-thief snatched the leather parcel from her and dashed across the Corn Exchange square. Miss Harris gave chase, shouting to the thief to drop the property and he finally did so after he had traced a small purse containing 25 cents. The police made a search of the city and have arrested two boys who were put in the sweat-box today.

Seat Sale Monday: The seat sale for "The Pink Hussars" which appear at the Myers theatre Tuesday evening will open at nine o'clock Monday morning at nine o'clock.

Passed Resolutions: Alumni and former students of the state university met yesterday afternoon at the office of Ryan and Oestreich and passed resolutions of sympathy at the death of Prof. David B. Frankenburg, a member of the faculty of the University.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES

Swisher Brothers' cigar factory at Newark, O., was destroyed by fire yesterday. The loss was $40,000, with insurance of $35,000.

The trial of George W. Beavers, former State Senator George E. Green of Binghamton, N. Y., and W. D. Doramus on indictments alleging fraud in connection with the letting of postal contract has been postponed until Feb. 19.

Charles H. Treat, treasurer of the United States, is in San Francisco on a pleasure trip and visited the sub-treasury yesterday.

Rev. Edward Milville Parker has been consecrated bishop coadjutor of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New Hampshire.

Dwight Parker of Fennimore, representative on the board of Wisconsin university regents from the third district, has resigned.

Judge Alton B. Parker and family have secured a home on Gulf beach, Pass Christian, La., and will live there for the remainder of the winter.

WIS. TELEPHONE CO. PAYS LICENSE FEE

Of $862.99 to City of Janesville—Gross Earnings for 1935 Amounted to $10,676.21.

Under a new state law the telephone companies are required to pay $5 per cent of their license fees to the cities in which the exchanges are operated instead of paying it all to the state, as was the custom here before. The Wisconsin Telephone Co. has turned over to City Treasurer F. A. there a check for $862.99, Janesville's share of the fee on $9,074.78—which is eighty-five per cent of the gross earnings here for 1935—$10,676.21.

LOVEJOY ELECTED TO PHI BETA KAPPA

Janesville Student at Yale Given Highest Possible Honor for Scholarship.

Henry Stowe Lovejoy, son of Mrs. A. P. Lovejoy, a former student in the local high school and one of Janesville's most well-known young men, has received the highest honors for scholarship that any University in the country can place upon one of its students. This is election to the honorary fraternity known as the Phi Beta Kappa. Mr. Lovejoy is a student at Yale in the class of '37, and his many friends here will rejoice in his success.

PRESS COMMENT.

Slap 'Em On The Wrists. Milwaukee News. Another coal strike is brewing. One more such experience as the American people went through in the last fuel famine at least ought to suggest to them that possibly provisions didn't create the coal deposits primarily for the coal trust's exclusive benefit.

Cure For Girls' Little Foibles.

Exchange: The Oshkosh Northwestern remarks that in order to get even with some of the girls who insist on revising the spelling of their names so they appear as Mae, Edith, Grace, and so on through the list, why would it not be a good plan for the young men to adopt the same plan and appear as Edwin, Bylye and Franque?

Counts And Husbands.

Milwaukee News. The Gould family's French countess, not turning out such a good investment as the Goulds expected when they bought him. The count is disposed to spend the millions that Jay Gould pirated much like a Pittsburgh steel king disposing of the surplus.

The Gould girl that bought the count thought that she was buying a husband at the same time. That was where she erred. She has awakened to the fact that she got a count, but not a husband. Husbands are not bought. Neither are wives.

The count and the countess it is understood, have arranged their difficulties. They have discovered that "they need each other." The countess needs the count to maintain her social standing and the count needs the countess to supply him with ready money.

FATAL TRAGEDY OVER POLITICS IN GEORGIA

Partisans Indulge in Pistol Fight in Front of City Hall at Savannah, One Being Dead.

Savannah, Ga., Feb. 10.—In a pistol fight between political partisans in front of the city hall Friday Babe Dyer was killed. Frank Nagle, a bystander, was shot and is in a critical condition with a bullet in his brain; Pat Kearney, a policeman, was shot through the neck and C. H. Dyer was shot twice through the legs.

Under arrest at the barracks are "Snatcher" Dyer and Thomas Hewett, a private detective.

The persons known to be concerned in the fight besides those under arrest are Harbor Master James McBride, Plumbing Inspector Richard McKenna, Tim McBride, a clerk in the harbor master's office, and James Lane, keeper of the police station.

The fight began between McKenna and "Babe" Dyer, and first soon became general. More than fifty shots had been fired when Private Detective Hewett took a hand. He shot down Will Dyer and C. H. Dyer, and then the shooting ceased.

"I prevented further bloodshed," said Hewett. "I stopped the fight."

The tragedy grew out of the animosity existing between two factions in city politics. The McBrides and Dyers have been leaders of the factions and have been passing threats for several days.

Slain in Saloon Row.

Society..

Social affairs have moved rapidly during the past week. Cards, cabrio, bridge, waist and euchre have been played numerous afternoons and evenings. On Thursday the devotees to the rollers held another gathering at the rink, but the cold weather has kept many away from their daytime enjoyment and the serving of lunches which characterized the sport last week. Grace George at the Myers Grand last evening precluded all social gatherings last evening and Tuesday and Friday evenings of next week are also dated by many to listen to the tuncful music of "The Pink Hussars" and listen to the lines of "The Man on the Box." The Twilight club also held its February meeting this coming week, which will give the male members of the population something to do.

Starting last Saturday Mrs. George Sale entertained two tables at bridge. On Monday Miss Louise Williams entertained at bridge at her home on Madison street. On Tuesday Mrs. Richard Valentine and Miss Anna Valentine were hostesses at an afternoon party, the second of a series. On Wednesday Mrs. W. G. Wheeler and Miss Mable Jackson were hostesses at an afternoon party and on Thursday the same ladies entertained again. This afternoon Mrs. Herbert Ford is the hostess in honor of her sister, Mrs. Wolf of Chicago, and she will entertain again next week. On Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Cox entertained at supper and cards at their new home on Wisconsin street. Twenty-five relatives and intimate friends were guests at supper and later cards were enjoyed. On Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday of next week Mrs. Mary Lappin, Mrs. Edwin Carpenter, Mrs. Mary Doty and Mrs. Charles Putnam are to be hostesses at five o'clock teas at Mrs. Lappin's residence on Park Place.

Those holding tickets to the Schumann club entertainments will please note change in the dates. Mr. Glenn Dellard Gunn will give his lecture-recital next Tuesday evening, February 12th. Miss Mary Angell, pianist, and Mr. Willets, baritone, will appear Monday evening, February 26. Mr. Gunn will illustrate his lecture with the following selections: Andante Tavori..... Beethoven Rhapsodie b minor..... Brahms Impromptu, Op. 36; Three Studies, Op. 25; Nos. 2, 3 and 4; Scherzo, b minor..... Chopin Ballade, b minor..... Liszt Walkurenritt..... Wagner

Mr. George Martin and Miss Nellie Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Art Purcell and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stone came up from Beloit last night to spend the evening with the Misses Maud and Marjory Nicholson.

Mr. and Mrs. John McCann were pleasantly surprised at their home in Johnston Wednesday evening. The evening was spent at cards, prizes going to Miss Alice McCann, first, and John Bear of Chicago, second.

Mrs. Tracey and Mrs. Gallager spent Thursday evening with the former's daughter, Mrs. Boss, in Milton Junction.

Miss Agnes McCann left today for Freeport, where she will be the guest of her sister the remainder of the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Harris went to Chicago this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Carle are in Chicago.

Teachers Lead Charges From Structure When Alarm Is Sounded.

Baraboo, Wis., Feb. 10.—The lives of many school children were saved here Friday by the prompt action of the teachers, who cleared the building, which was on fire. By the coolness and systematic drill of the teachers 300 children were safely conducted out of the burning three-story high school building shortly before noon, thus avoiding what might have been a serious panic. About 100 made use of the fire escape. The fire originated from a defective flue, quickly spreading throughout the building, which was valued at $40,000 and is a total loss. The insurance is $16,000.

Just a Poem

Mr. Pratt recently sent a copy of the ordinance relative to spitting on the sidewalk to M. P. Wheeler, a brother of Ella Wheeler Wilcox, and received in reply the following poem:

TO POTSDAM, NEW YORK.

O'er Potsdam, when the sun was low All spotted lay the unsullied snow; And, bright as silver was the glow Of moonbeams, shining cheerily.

But Potsdam saw another sight, When men and urchins, day and night, Had chewed and spit with all their might, And durbed her streets most shamefully!

Last eve, the snow lay like a fleece: So pure and white without a crease. Today! (It makes us think of geese, That walk our streets so gracefully!)

It came in feathers, pure and white. Has been here only one short night. 'Tis splattered now, from left to right With dark spots showing dirtily!

Ab! What an intellectual feat! To chew, to spit, and jokes repeat. And then go chewing down the street Still spitting juice promiscuously!

Potsdam! (In York state understand, The only village in this land Where gentlemen (?) of any brand Conduct themselves thus boorishly!)

What giant intellects are thine! How gloriously their names will shine, When they go charging down the line And capture—purgatory!

PLAN TO CHANGE RIVER COURSE

Waters of Kankakee to Be Turned Into Wabash Instead of Illinois.

La Porte, Ind., Feb. 10.—Large owners of lands along the Kankakee river will divert the flood waters of the Kankakee into the Tippecanoe river, whereby a more rapid and thorough discharge may be had and much damage to crops averted. The channel will be about eight miles long. The Kankakee will then flow down the Wabash instead of the Illinois.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Introduces the hero, Robert Warburton, a well-to-do Western Point graduate on duty in Arizona. After being wounded by an Indian, resigns his commission in the army and leaves for Europe.

CHAPTER II.—Introduces the heroine, Miss Betty Annesley, daughter of a retired army officer living near Washington. A beautiful, aristocratic young American girl, whom Warburton has seen in Paris, is smitten, and follows to New York. Seeks introduction on board steamer but fails.

CHAPTER III.—Upon reaching New York Warburton locates hotel in which the Annesleys are guests and dines there in order to see Miss Annesley. Encountered by a young Russian count whom he met on steamer, brings Miss Annesley to the dinner. Next morning the count and the Annesleys had disappeared.

CHAPTER IV.—Warburton goes to Washington to visit his relatives—a married brother who holds a government position and a sister-in-law, who is an old school chum of his. Invited to accompany family to ball at British embassy, but declines. Conceals a scheme to play a joke on his sister and sister-in-law.

CHAPTER V.—Warburton meets his sister's fiancé whom he had not seen for eight years. Sees the folks off for the embassy ball and then proceeds to put his joke into execution, which is to disguise himself as a coachman and drive his sister and sister-in-law to the embassy to see the ambassador.

CHAPTER VI.—Warburton in his disguise goes to British embassy and takes the place of his brother's coachman, whom he has bribed. He mistakes his carriage number when called and gets the wrong passengers without knowing it. Drives frantically about the streets pursued by mounted policemen. When carriage comes to a stop he springs down and throws his arms about the first of the mounted police who proves to be Miss Annesley instead of his sister.

CHAPTER VII.—Warburton is arrested on a charge of drunkenness and abduction preferred by Miss Annesley and locked up over night in the city of James Osborne, the charge of abduction is withdrawn but he is fined $5 for drunkenness. Sends note to Chuck, his old chum, telling of his trouble.

CHAPTER VIII.—Chuck, takes suit of clothes and money to pay the fine to city jail, only to find that fine had been paid. Warburton, in his place of James Osborne, receives note from Miss Annesley offering him position of coachman, which he declines to accept in spite of protest of his friend, who he leaves to explain his disappearance to his relatives, by stating that he had gone north suddenly on a hunting trip.

CHAPTER IX.—Miss Annesley, after closely questioning Warburton (known to her as James Osborne) at her home, hires him on probation. While being shown about the stables expressed desire to ride an exceptionally vicious thoroughbred called Pirate. With Miss Annesley's permission he saddles and tames the horse which immediately bolts.

CHAPTER X.—After a fierce struggle Warburton succeeds in mastering Pirate. In the presence of Miss Annesley, but receives no word of praise. Interview between Col. Annesley and daughter in which he tells her that he has invited young Russian Count Karloff to dine with them on the morrow.

CHAPTER XI.—A TICKLING BUSINESS. Pierre was fierce and fat and 40, but he could cook the most wonderful roasts and ragouts that Warburton ever tasted; and he could take a handful of vegetables and an insignificant bone and make a soup that would have tickled the faded palate of a Lucullus. Warburton presented himself at the kitchen door.

"Ah!" said Pierre, striking a dramatic pose, a ladle in one hand and a pan in the other. "So you are new groom? Good! We make a butter out of you? Bah! Do you know the difference between a broth and a soup? Eh?"

The new groom gravely admitted that he did.

"Hear to me!" and Pierre struck his chest with a ladle. "I teach you how to sauté; I, Pierre Flageolet, will teach a hostler to be a butler! Bah!"

"That is what I am sent here for."

"Here to me! If say half oysters zay are placed on zee table before zee guests enter. V'la? Then zee soup. You sairve one deesh at a time. You do not carry all zee deashes at once. And you lak zee deesh, so!"—illustrating. "Then you wait till zay push aside zee soup deesh. Then you carry zem away. V'la?"

Warburton signified that he understood.

"I carve zee meats," went on the amiable Pierre. "You haf nothing to do wif zee meats. You rest zee deesh on zee flat of zee hand, so! Always sairve to zee right of zee guests. V'la? zay do not move while you sairve. You spill zee soup and I keel you. To spill zee soup zee crime. Now, take hold of thees soup deesh."

Warburton took it clumsily by the rim. Pierre snatched it away with a volley of French oaths. William said that there was to be no "cussing," but Pierre seemed to be an immune and not included in this order.

"Idiot! Imbecile! Non! non! Thees way. You would put zee thumb in zee soup. Zay! You haf catch zat. Come to zee dining hall. I show you. I explain."

The new groom was compelled to put forth all his energies to keep his face straight. If he laughed, he was lost. If only his old mates could see him now. The top of Troop A playing at butler! Certainly he would have to write Chuck about it—(which he most certainly never did). Still, the ordeal in the dining-room was a severe one. Nothing he attempted was done satisfactorily. Pierre, having in mind Celeste's frivolity and this man's good looks, made the task doubly hard. He hissed "Idiot!" and "Imbecile!" and "Jackass!" as many times as there are knives and forks and spoons at a course dinner. It was when they came to the wines that Pierre became mollified. He was forced to acknowledge that the new groom needed no instructions as to the varying temperatures of entrees and burgundies. Warburton lounged to get out into the open and door open, but drove away, hickety-clip. I do not know what a mile hickety-clip is generally made in, but I am rather certain that the civil law demands $25.00 for the same. The gods were with him this time and no one called him to halt. When he had gone far away from Scott Circle, as he dared go, his eye was attracted by a genial cigar sign. He hailed a boy to hold the horses and went inside. He bought a dozen cigars and lit one. He didn't even take the trouble to see if he could get the cigars for nothing there being a penny-in-the-slot machine in one corner of the shop. I am sure that if he had noticed it, it would have enticed him, for the spirit of chance was well-grounded in him. It is in all army men. But he hurried out, threw the boy a dime, and drove away. For an hour and 30 minutes he drove and smoked and pondered. So he played the violin! played a wonderfully as the count had declared. He was passionately fond of music. In London, in Paris, in Berlin, in Vienna, he had been an untiring, unflinching patron of the opera. Some night he resolved to listen at the window, providing the window was open. Yes, a hundred times Chuck was right. Any other girl, and this jest might have passed capably; but he wanted the respect of this particular woman, and he had carelessly closed the doors to her regard. She might tolerate him; that would be all. She would look upon him as a hobbledchoy.

He approached the curb again in front of the house, and gazed wistfully at the "lighted" windows. Here was another great opportunity gone. How he longed to dash into the house, confess, and have done with it!

"I wish Chuck was in there. I wish he would come out and kick me good and hearty."

(Chuck would have been delighted to perform the trifling service, and he would not have gone about it with any timidity, either.)

"Haar the horses! I'm going to take a peep in at the side window,"—and he slid cautiously from the box. He stole around the side and stopped at one of the windows. The curtain was not wholly lowered, and he could see into the drawing-room. They were there, all of them; and Miss Annesley was holding the baby, which Mrs. Jack had awakened and brought down stairs. He could see by the diffident manner in which Jack was curling the ends of his mustache that they were comparing the baby with him. "The concealed ass!" muttered the self-appointed observer. "It doesn't look any more like him than it does like me." Here Miss Annesley kissed the baby, and Warburton hoped that they hadn't washed its face since he performed the same act.

Mrs. Jack disappeared with the hope of the family, and Nancy got out a bundle of photographs. M'sieu Zhammes would have given almost anything he possessed to know what these photographs represented. Crane his neck as he would, he could see nothing. All he could do was to watch. Sometimes they laughed, sometimes they became grave; sometimes they explained, and their guest grew very attentive. Once she even leaned forward eagerly. It was about this time that our Jehu chanced to look at the clock on the mantel, and immediately concluded to vacate the premises. It was half after ten. He returned to his box forthwith. ("I was going to use the word 'alaricry,' but I find that it means 'cheerful readiness.' After what seemed to him an interminable wait, the front door opened and a flood of light blinded him. He heard Nancy's voice.

"I am sorry, Betty, that I can't dine with you on Monday. We are going to Arlington. So sorry."

"I'm not!" murmured the wretch on the box. "I'm devilish glad! Imagine, passing soup to one's sister! By George, it was a narrow one! It would have been all over then."

"Well, there will plenty of times this winter," said Betty. "I shall see you all at the Country club Sunday afternoon. Good night, every one. No, no; there's no need of any of you coming to the carriage."

But brother Jack did walk to the door with her; however, he gave not the slightest attention to the groom, for which he was grateful.

"You must all come and spend the evening with me soon," said Betty, entering the carriage.

"That we shall," said brother Jack, closing the door for her. "Good night."

"Home, James," said the voice within the carriage.

I do not know whether or not he slept soundly that night on his stable cot. He never would confess. But it is my private opinion that he didn't sleep at all; but spent a good part of the night out of doors, smoking very black, strong cigars.

Celeste, however, could have told you that her mistress, as she retired, was in a most amiable frame of mind. Once she laughed.

Labor Notes

The work of the Japanese and Korean Exclusion League has recently been formally endorsed by organized labor throughout California.

Plumbers of Boston, Mass., and Hartford, Conn., have been granted an increase from $3.50 to $4.00 per day.

Plasterers at Pittsburg were granted an advance of 20 cents per day, making $4.50 per day of eight hours.

The Journeymen Bookbinders Union of San Francisco, has secured the eight-hour workday to take effect July 1, 1907. The minimum scale agreed upon is $19.50 a week for forwarders, finishers and rulers.

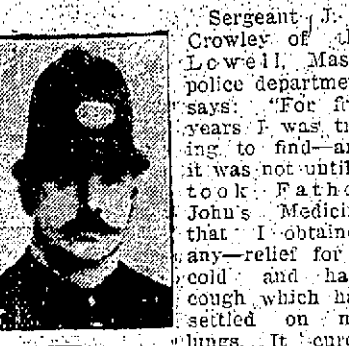

Out of 247 printing houses in New York City, 210 have signed the eight-hour day and "closed shop" agreement with the printers, according to a statement issued on January 9 by President McCormick of Typographical Union No. 6.

The Supreme Court of Colorado has granted a supersedeas in the case brought against the mine operators of Leadville which will result in testing a portion of the new law on blacklisting when the case is heard on its merits.

The Isthmian Canal Commission has adopted a suggestion made by Chairman Shonts to experiment with labor from the Northern part of Spain in construction work on the Isthmus.

The last monthly report of the employees' relief fund for the Pennsylvania Railroad company's lines east of Pittsburg and Erie shows that the payments of benefits to its members and the families of deceased members for the month of November, 1905, amounted to $13,509.91, of which $45,739.26 was on account of death and $67,970.65 on account of disability by sickness and death.

WANTED TO CUT HIS THROAT

Milwaukee Man Lived in Terrible Suspense for Days—His Strange and Intensely Interesting Story.

MR. JOSEPH LYONS.

Living for some days in the awful suspense of submitting to a delicate surgical operation upon his throat, Mr. Joseph Lyons, 1324 Chestnut St., Milwaukee, Wis., found himself in a critical state of mind bordering upon insanity and but for the timely arrival in Milwaukee of Mr. L. T. Cooper the philanthropist, he would probably be at this moment in a mad house. Now, however, Mr. Lyons smilingly relates his strange story which never fails to hold his listeners in breathless interest. "It was about four years ago," he said, "when my trouble began with a simple case of catarrh to which I paid little attention at first but which gradually grew worse and worse until the nasal passage became filled with a nasty dripping mucus, my breath foul and finally the germs spread to my stomach and so affected that organ that digestion was greatly impaired. At times my throat was almost entirely closed and I had to gasp for breath."

"Physicians said my only relief was in an operation but when Mr. Cooper visited Milwaukee with his famous medicines and every one was talking of his marvelous cures I decided to try his remedies. The result was that in a very short time I was entirely relieved and the awful, dreaded operation was avoided. Now I eat well, sleep well, digest well and most of all I feel well and can only thank Mr. Cooper for my restored health."

Cooper's New Discovery cures Stomach and Kidney trouble, Catarrh, Deafness, Blood Diseases and Paralysis and sells for one dollar per bottle. Cooper's Quick Relief, the assistant remedy costs fifty cents. Both are sold only by

In the general markets the grain list remains about the same as our last quotations, although prices are weakening on wheat, corn and oats during the last few days—bearish sentiment is increasing. In the local market the supply is equal to the demand for hay, straw, grain and provisions. While the general market for corn has a weak tone there is a good local demand at present quotations. Eggs are becoming more plentiful and prices a little lower.

BE A LAND OWNER--NOT A RENTER

Own Your Own Farm and Have It Free from Debt

SOUTHWEST TEXAS offers to every hustler of limited means property of the finest kind—land of the richest soil—a life of perfect contentment. It offers to the investor an opportunity to make money rapidly—an investment of absolute safety. Lands have doubled and tripled in value in almost every agricultural part of the State in the past few years, and the end is nowhere near in sight.

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT IT!!!

Procrastination is the thief of time; it is also the load-stone about the neck of you men who have been toiling along from year to year wearing out your ambitions and bodies with nothing to show for it but a living and in many cases not the best living at that.

WHY PUT OFF TASTING THE HONEY AND SWEETS OF LIFE LONGER-- BUILD YOUR FORTUNE NOW!

CHAS. H. LEE, EVANSVILLE, WIS.
Who has spent much time in Texas and knows of its many advantages.

Tuesday, February 20th,

Our Mr. Chas. H. Lee will accompany a party to Alice, Texas, and surrounding country. The round trip will cost $30.15 from Evansville, Wis. Send in your name at once so that proper arrangements may be made for your accommodation. The trip takes you via San Antonio and various other scenic points. DO IT NOW, TODAY! Look the situation squarely in the face and make up your mind to act for your best interest.

Men become independent in one year down in Southwest Texas. They buy land and necessary equipment, and from one year's work pay off all debts and have a comfortable amount to their credit besides.

THESE ARE INDISPUTABLE FACTS!

The richest black land, with a subsoil from four to six feet deep, can be purchased for $15.00 per acre—one-half down, balance on easy terms of payment. No expensive buildings to erect—no long cold winters for which to provide fuel—living and clothing expenses less and everything in your favor.

Then again the pleasant side of the proposition:—Even temperature the year around—within a few miles of the Gulf of Mexico—splendid hunting and fishing—and the most healthful of climatic locations. You are familiar with the location of this land near the city of Alice, Texas, at Alfred Station. The tract consists of 800 acres.

A RICE FIELD IN SOUTHWEST TEXAS—RICE CULTURE IN TEXAS IS ATTRACTING MUCH ATTENTION

JUST A COMPARISON

"Just as a comparison of the month of October in Wisconsin and Texas take the following. October in Wisconsin: Getting cold and making you think of providing shelter for man and beast. Frost reported in many localities, killing all vegetation. In Texas at the same time: Sowing beets, cabbage, cauliflower, carrots, lettuce, onion sets, peas, radishes, spinach and turnips. In planting the cabbage make a sowing of Brunswick on the fifteenth and follow with Succession and Early Summer. Take your strawberries up, clean them from runners and set them out again. The month of October is a busy month for the Texas farmer, as all the winter vegetables not already planted must be in the ground this month to be ready for the January and February markets. How is that for a comparison?"

A Comparison.
Take the following figures and compare them with the same months in Wisconsin and then deduce your own results.

January—In January when the northern farmers are snowed under south Texas is shipping lettuce, radishes, turnips, beets and such other vegetables as are not easily hurt by frost. Texas gardeners are busy at work in preparing their fields for cauliflower, cabbage and onions.

Texas farmers work out of doors every day in the year, and are rapidly moving to the land of sunshine, flowers, wealth and health.

February—In February the frost king still reigns supreme in all the northern states. In south Texas February is the beginning of spring, flowers blooming, grass green, birds singing, while farm work goes steadily on. Corn and potatoes are planted in frames to be transplanted in March. Cauliflower, one of the most profitable crops, is being marketed as well as many other varieties of vegetables.

March—March is the most dreaded month in the north; the pneumonia month, which so many fear. With its snows and thaws and northeast rains, so deadly to people of weak constitution. The ground throughout the entire north is so much frozen that nothing can be done in out of door work. In fact it is about as much as people can do to keep warm in their houses. In south Texas March is the banner month for truck shipments from different points along the San Antonio & Aransas Pass railway. Mixed vegetables are rapidly moving by the carload, and cabbages by the train load. The truck farmer has money to sell, money to burn, but he don't like to smell the smoke.

Tomatoes, cucumbers, beans and all other tender vegetables make good growth in March. Cotton is planted in March. In many cases cotton is planted on a cabbage land that has already yielded the producer from $100 to $300 per acre. This sounds like a fairy tale, but the early shepherd gets the top prices, and these statements can be verified to anyone who will go and investigate for himself.

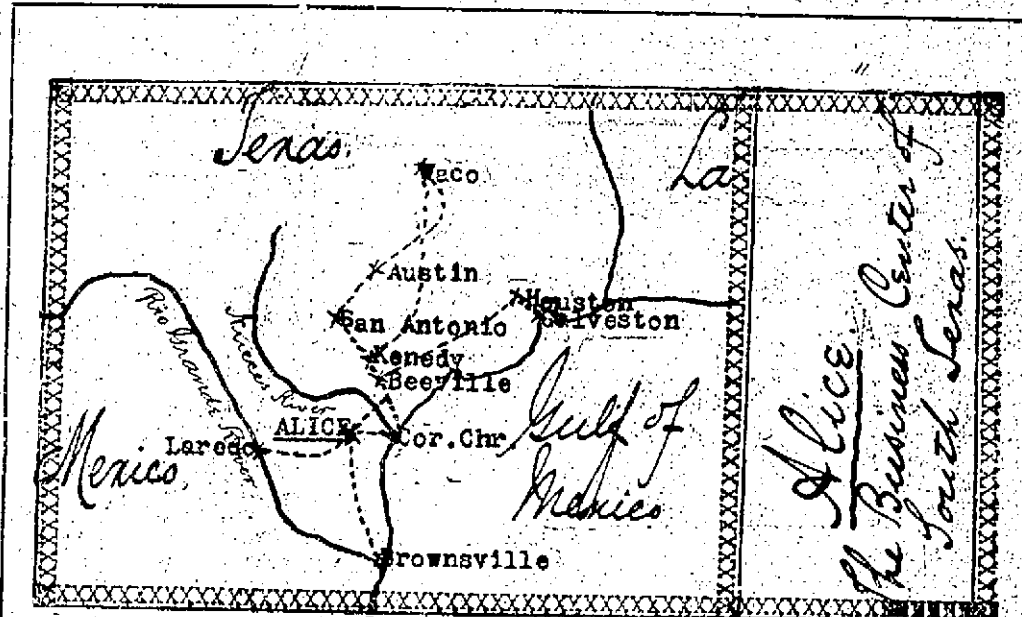

May—May in Texas, corn was nearly eared, wheat and oat harvest was on. In south Texas all kinds of vegetables, including corn and tomatoes were in abundance. May is the big onion month in south Texas. Many planters have netted as much as $400 per acre, while the lowest yield was $100 per acre. One firm sold onions from forty acres for $21,000, net profit. Wide-awake northern farmers would do well to make a personal investigation of the resources in the coast country of Texas. The land is equal to any in the north and can be bought at a reasonable price, ranging from $12 to $25 an acre, location considered.

The Cool Breeze in Texas.
Many people in the north think the Texas people swelter and dry out on account of the hot weather, but those who know the truth understand quite the reverse. The writer spent sixty days of the hot season last year in the coast country in Texas, and it was claimed by old settlers to be the hottest season in many years. The highest point the thermometer reached any day was 92 in the shade. While the sun is hot in Texas, the same as elsewhere, yet we have a continual gulf breeze which makes our summer more delightful and more pleasant than those in the north.

Is Texas Too Dry?
Weather bureau statistics show that the average rainfall in the Texas southwest country is about the same as that of Omaha, 28 to 30 inches, but like other states, the rainfall does not always come at the right time nor in the proper proportions wanted. We will give statistics as taken at Alice this year, for each month.

Twelve Thousand Persons Left Tuesday For Texas!

There were 12,000 people who went to Texas, Tuesday, from Chicago to investigate the great possibilities of that State; as many more went from St. Louis.

WHY HAVE THEY GONE?

Because Texas offers the greatest opportunities of any State in the Union today. Our lands are as rich as any in the State, and the other conditions are far ahead of most any other part of the State.

Advice has always been given to young men to "go west and grow up with the country." Our proposition appeals to both old and young alike. It's good for the sick, the strong, the oppressed and the vigorous.

It's the Best Thing For You!

All inquiries will be answered fully regarding the trip South, Tuesday, February 20th, or about Texas lands.
